

From the Dean

Kate DeJarnette, M.S., faculty member in our Intercampus Program in Communicative Disorders, received the Sandy and Marc Fey Clinical Scholars Award. Named in honor of the late Marc Fey, Ph.D., professor emeritus, the award is presented to promising students in the clinical doctorate program in speech-language pathology who aim to study assessment or intervention practices with the pediatric population. Congratulations.

Department of Physical Therapy, Rehabilitation Science, and Athletic Training faculty members Jason Rucker, Ph.D., and Stacia Troshynski Brown, DPT, were selected through a competitive application process to one-year appointments to task forces as part of the institutes recently formed by the American Council of Academic Physical Therapy. They will serve on the Task Force for Simulation Outcome Measures and the Task Force for Exploring Career Pathways for Graduates of DPT programs, respectively. Congratulations.

Department of Occupational Therapy Education faculty member Adriana Queiroz, Ph.D., presented at the annual research conference of the Society for the Study of Occupation: USA. The presentation was titled "School Participation and Racism: What Female Highschoolers Have to Say About It?" The event was held October 19-21, 2023, in St. Louis. Nice work.

Next Wednesday is KU's 24-hour fundraising campaign – One Day. One KU. – rescheduled from the original date, due to the tragedy at the Chiefs parade and rally. Current occupational therapy student Jenna Shaw is featured in this year's campaign page video to highlight the impact your contributions have on the success of our students. You can help us reach more people by becoming an ambassador for our school. Ambassadors receive a digital toolkit and are eligible to win prizes. Thank you in advance for your support during One Day. One KU. on March 6 from midnight to 11:59 p.m.

Please be safe, and thank you for all that you do.
